DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Murphy (U.S. Patent No. 6,325,280) in view of Dickie (U.S. Publication No. 2005/0106909). With regard to Claims 1-2 and 5, Murphy (Figs. 1-3) discloses an apparatus (10) for interconnecting electrical parts on least one circuit board (20) having a pattern of electrically conductive elements (22) thereon comprising in combination: at least one socket means (60) having a particular array electrically conductive through passages (64) formed thereon which pattern mates with the pattern on a circuit board; the socket means having connected to it a socket sleeve member (50) which has conductive passageway (inner surface of 50) through the socket sleeve member having contact member (51) therein for receiving an interconnecting pin member (34) which through the sleeve member and engages the contact member placed within the sleeve.

However, Murphy doesn't show a relatively soft barrier means formed at one end of the sleeve member adapted to be easily removed by the insertion of the interconnecting pin member, the soft barrier means being formed of kraft paper, the cylindrical sleeve member being formed on one end thereof to trap and retain in possession the barrier means until an interconnecting pin member is placed therein to dislodge the barrier means.

Dickie discloses a connector having a relatively soft barrier means formed at one end adapted to be easily removed, the soft barrier means being formed of kraft paper.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the apparatus of Murphy by including a relatively soft barrier means formed at one end adapted to be easily removed, the soft barrier means being formed of kraft paper as taught in Dickie in order to prevent the apparatus from being contaminated.

With regard to Claim 3, Murphy (Figs. 1-3) discloses the near end of the sleeve member being formed into a sharp edge (part of 50 that protrudes from 62, Fig. 3) member.

With regard to Claim 4, Murphy (Figs. 1-3) discloses the sleeve member having an outer surface (outer surface of the part of 50 that protrudes from 62, Fig. 3), which is tapered inward towards its center to form a sharp edge (part of 50 that protrudes from 62, Fig. 3) with the inner cylindrical surface.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Lambert (U.S. Patent No. 4,797,113), Currie (U.S. Patent No.

Art Unit: 2833

5,290,970), Recktenwald et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,644,983) and Niles et al. (U.S. Patent No. 4,390,221) disclose apparatuses for connecting boards having socket means and sleeve members.
